Q 1. Identify the characteristics of a candidate that can be assessed in a group activity during the selection process. 1. Creativity 2. Physical fitness 3. Listening ability 4. Qualification

- ☐ 1,2 & 3
- ☐ 1,3 & 4
- ☐ 2,3 & 4
- ☐ Only 3
- ☐ Both 1 & 3

UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Both 1 & 3

Explanation:

In a Group Activity, about eight to ten candidates will be brought together and asked to perform an activity. The activity could be assembling a figure from broken pieces like a jig saw puzzle, solving a problem of prioritizing ten items on the basis of importance in a given situation, finding a solution to tackle a difficult management problem or discussing a topic of common interest.

Group activities provide a lot of data about the candidates, to the extent that they reveal the thought processes, creativity, values, listening ability, argumentativeness, aggressiveness, etc. The process is equally important as it reveals interpersonal skills and important behavioural tendencies.

Q 2. Complete the statement with the CORRECT option. In conditions where the subordinate is fully mature a leader can_____.

- ☐ monitor the task closely
- ☐ take an authoritarian approach
- ☐ delegate to the subordinate
- ☐ lose interest in the task
- ☐ None of the above

UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

delegate to the subordinate

Explanation:

Hersey and Blanchard have postulated the concept of Situational Leadership which states that the leadership style should depend on the "maturity" of the sub-ordinates. The word "maturity" is used to refer to: the skill of the sub-ordinate in relation to the tasks at hand, and his will to perform.

When the sub-ordinate is fully mature, that is, both his skill and will are high, the leader can withdraw totally, leaving him to do his job. This is the DELEGATING style where the leader shows little concern for either task or the person. The sub-ordinate is competent to manage himself.

- Q 3. Identify the statement that is TRUE with reference to 'transfers'.
- ☐ Transfers always involve change in employee status
 - ☐ Transfers are used as a part of an employee's career plan
 - ☐ Transfers always involve significant change in the emoluments
 - ☐ All of the above
 - ☐ Only a & b

UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Transfers are used as a part of an employee's career plan

Explanation:

Transfer refers to the movement of an employee from one job to another within the organisation.

It may or not involve any significant change in the emoluments and status. Transfer is one of the methods of filling up a vacancy that arises in an office. Transfers may be done also as part of the career plan for individual employees, with a view to provide them wider experience.

While transfers are an organisational necessity, employees tend to look upon transfers as problems and sometimes even as punishment. Transfers involve relocation, which is not always convenient. Children's school admissions, elderly parents not being in good health, working spouses and other commitments in society can be disconcerting and cause financial strain as well.

Organisations also tend to use transfers as ways of punishment, thus giving even justifiable transfers a bad perception.

- ☐ Audit must be done as an independent activity by persons having no direct responsibility for operations
- ☐ Audit cannot be done for Individual behaviour
- ☐ Audit can be done for Corporate activities
- ☐ Only 1 & 3
- ☐ All of the above

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Only 1 & 3

Explanation:

A periodical audit regarding the organisation's performance on ethics would contribute to the creation and maintenance of an ethical environment.

Both corporate activities and individual behaviours can be audited. The audit must be done by persons who have no direct responsibility for operations and should report directly to the CEO or the Board of Directors.

Q 5. Identify the CORRECT statement/s regarding 'Oral communications'.

- ☐ They are considered to be least expensive
- ☐ They are most suitable for distant communications
- ☐ They are always informal
- ☐ All of these
- ☐ None of these

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

They are considered to be least expensive

Explanation:

In case of oral communication, there is a direct contact and face to face relationship between the sender and receiver. In case of telephones or intercom systems, face to face contact may not be present but messages do travel through tone and voice modulations, pauses, etc. Usually a large amount of time of an executive is spent in oral communication with his sub-ordinates and colleagues.

Oral communication has the following merits:

- i. It is two-way, provides immediate feedback. It is direct, simple and least expensive.
- ii. It provides an opportunity to ask questions and seek clarity.
- iii. It provides an opportunity to check understanding.

Q 6. Identify the CORRECT statement regarding systems approach of Management.

- ☐ A system is made up of subsystems that are interdependent parts
- ☐ A successful organisation remains unaffected due to the influence of its sub-systems
- ☐ A system is considered to be a collection of individual parts
- ☐ Only a & c
- ☐ All of the above

❌ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

A system is made up of subsystems that are interdependent parts

Explanation:

A "system" is an organised unitary whole, comprising of two or more inter-dependent parts or components, called subsystems.

In other words, a system is a combination of subsystems that acts as a single entity rather than as a mere collection of individual parts. Each part influences and is influenced by every other part in the system.

Each of these subsystems is dependent and related to each of the other subsystems. Unless these subsystems function in unison, the end result is the mal-functioning of the total system. The behaviour of the entity is a resultant of the function or the behaviours of the individual parts or subsystems and their interactions. Likewise, the work of an organisation is organised through the creation of several departments and sections. An organisation is a system with many subsystems and is also a subsystem within a bigger system, which is the society.

- ☐ The impact that an idea has
- ☐ Area of expertise
- ☐ Language chosen for communicating an idea
- ☐ Validity of an idea
- ☐ Context or background in which an idea exists

UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Context or background in which an idea exists

Explanation:

Barriers to effective communication includes "Frame of reference". The context or background in which an idea exists is important to understanding the idea properly. If the context is not transmitted along with the idea, there would be a difference in meaning. The receiver will assume a different context.

- ☐ Personal relationships
- ☐ Lack of time
- ☐ Requirement for being together
- ☐ Fear of being punished
- ☐ Nearness in space

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Nearness in space

Explanation:

People form groups for many reasons. One of them is propinquity or nearness in time or space. Fellow travelers in a train compartment can be an example.

Another reason can be common activities or interactions or interests. Members of a club will have groups according to their interests in a sport or in politics. They may come together to fight for a common cause, as in a protest march.

Whatever be the reason, members in a group will find satisfaction in being in that group, because there is something common with all the others.

Informal groups are formed within organisations because of propinquity, from among the formal Command groups or Task forces. They come together outside the requirements of work. But, as discovered by Elton Mayo, the informal group can have an effect on

- ☐ Only 3
- ☐ Only 1
- ☐ Only 2
- ☐ Both 1 & 3
- ☐ Both 1 & 2

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Only 2

Explanation:

There were four main developments that made managements realise that people could not be treated as mere means of production.

Governments actively intervened through legislations, laying down minimum wages, overtime allowances, retirement benefits, gratuities and other welfare measures, like job security, working conditions, leave facilities, etc., to ensure that workers are not exploited. Mechanisms were created for the redressal of grievances and industrial disputes. Many judgements handed down by the courts of law pointed to the necessity of treating employees with dignity and respecting their rights.

Trade unions became very active to seek better prospects and benefits for the workers.

 - ☐ To ensure that retiring employees are rehabilitated
 - ☐ To plan beforehand the payment of retirement benefits on time
 - ☐ All of the above
 - ☐ None of the above

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Identify people who are capable of taking higher responsibility at senior level

Explanation:

Some organisations use the HRIS for what is known as succession planning. The idea of succession planning is that the vacancies that arise due to retirements, transfers and / or promotions at important middle and senior levels are filled up without delay.

The succession plan will identify people from within the organisation, who will be ready to take over when the vacancy arises and prepare them to do so. The purpose is to ensure that there should not be a vacuum at those important levels.

The succession planning exercise will show whether there is enough strength in the existing manpower to fill up the important vacancies as they may arise in future and whether anything special needs to be done to ensure that the strength becomes adequate.

- ☐ Contingency approach
- ☐ Classical approach
- ☐ Behavioral approach
- ☐ Systems approach
- ☐ Human relationship approach

❌ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Human relationship approach

Explanation:

The Human Relations approach made the following important contributions to management thought:

- Organisations are social entities in addition to being technical entities.
- Rational economic assumptions about human behaviour were inadequate to explain behaviour at work.
- Informal work groups exist in organisations, with affiliations different from the formal work groups.
- The understanding of informal work group culture is crucial to understanding behaviour of workers at work.
- Productivity is intimately related to workers' satisfaction.
- Workers' motivation is not based merely on economic considerations, but sentiment and need for social affiliation also play important roles.

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

McGregor

Explanation:

An important theory to understand behaviour of humans at work was postulated by Douglas McGregor. He said that behaviour was not the consequence only of an individual's inherent nature, but was also a result of the manner in which he is managed at work.

Theory X and Theory Y are two extreme anchors. Any worker at a time may be somewhere between X and Y. He has to be managed according to assumptions, appropriate to his personality and character. There is "no average" worker.

- ☐ All human resources in an organization to be treated in the same manner uniformly
- ☐ All individuals are unique and complex in nature and are of standard specification
- ☐ All out the above statements are correct
- ☐ None of the above statements are correct

UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

None of the above statements are correct

Explanation:

Human Resource Management (HRM) is based on the understanding that every individual is complex, endowed with the potential to enhance skills and become a more valuable asset as well as having, at the same time, the capacity to withdraw his skills from work and become a liability. No person can be looked upon as having standard specifications, like other resources have. They cannot be treated in the same manner uniformly. - ☐ Strategic changes generates many smaller order changes
- ☐ Strategic changes are unlikely to have short term implications
- ☐ Long term changes are generally part of strategic change of an organization
- ☐ All of the above
- ☐ Only options 'a' and 'c'

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Only options 'a' and 'c'

Explanation:

Some changes are quick to make and also quick to unmake. Such changes have short term implications. Some other changes have long term implications. They are slow to take roots. They touch basic structures and processes. Long term changes are normally part of "strategic" decisions.

Strategic change is descriptive of the magnitude of alteration in culture, structure, product, market positioning, etc. Just as a corporate plan gives rise to several smaller level plans, so also, strategic change generates several smaller order changes.

While computerisation has very long-term implications and a change in the layout of an office is a change without long term implications, both are examples of Strategic change of an organisation.

Q 38. Which of the following will be termed as ethical practice?

- ☐ Dereliction of duty
- ☐ Bending the propriety of one's function to achieve personal ends
- ☐ Misuse of authority
- ☐ Doing one's duty
- ☐ None of the above

❌ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Doing one's duty

Explanation:

Ethics deals with issues of right and wrong. The principles of right conduct are not always explicitly stated. They are implicitly known. There would be general awareness of what constitutes proper behaviour.

Doing one's duty is ethical. Neglecting duty is unethical. Doing duty means fulfilling the obligations of the jobs undertaken by oneself. Duty is in relation to one's responsibility. One has duties at work depending on the position occupied, and in the family as a parent or as a son / daughter, or as sister / brother.

- ☐ Hot stove rule
 - ☐ Instant reaction rule
 - ☐ Proactive action rule
 - ☐ Vigilant rule
 - ☐ None of the above

❌ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Hot stove rule

Explanation:

Just as when someone touches a hot stove he gets an immediate sensation of burning and he not only withdraws the hand but refrains from touching it again, every act of indiscipline should invite an immediate response which conveys the message that there is infringement and compelling withdrawal from the violation.

The hot stove rule emphasises that the response to indiscipline should be impersonal, quick and consistent.
