Q 1. Identify the CORRECT statement/s regarding job analysis.

- ☐ Identification of the skills and qualification required for a job can be done with the help of job analysis.
- ☐ In a stable organization, determinants arrived at after job analysis at various intervals of time will remain the same.
- ☐ Identification and elimination of unimportant jobs can be done with the help of job analysis.
- ☐ All of the above
- ☐ Only a & c

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Only a & c

Explanation:

Job analysis includes:

- i. Clarifying the activities, that are to be done
- ii. Determining the parameters of those activities, namely, stating the criteria to evaluate whether those activities have been done properly or not
- iii. Categorising them in terms of simplicity, complexity, importance, etc
- iv. Identifying the knowledge and skills (physical, mental, social, technical, human or conceptual) necessary to be able to perform those activities.

Job analysis includes:

- i. Clarifying the activities, that are to be done
- ii. Determining the parameters of those activities, namely, stating the criteria to evaluate whether those activities have been done properly or not
- iii. Categorising them in terms of simplicity, complexity, importance, etc
- iv. Identifying the knowledge and skills (physical, mental, social, technical, human or conceptual) necessary to be able to perform those activities.

On the basis of job analysis, it is possible to

- i. Distinguish between operational, supervisory and managerial jobs;
- ii. Evaluate which jobs are more important than others, although no job will be unimportant. If any job is unimportant, it can and should be, eliminated.
- iii. Make an hierarchy of jobs on the basis of difficulty in acquiring the knowledge and skills necessary to do the various jobs;
- iv. Identify the jobs that are very crucial or critical for the operations
- v. Decide the kinds of jobs that will have to be done in various offices and various points of time.

All the determinants arrived at after job analysis may change from time to time.

Q 2. Identify the CORRECT statement/s with respect to Quality of Work Life (QWL).

- ☐ Commitment to work indicates quality of work life
- ☐ QWL does not affect the performance of the organisation
- ☐ Improvement in QWL leads to improvement of physical and intellectual capacity of employees
- ☐ Both a & c
- ☐ All of the above

UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Both a & c

Explanation:

Experience at work affects Quality of life. If experience at work is dissatisfying, the consequent emotional disturbances will carry through to other activities in the family and socially, affecting Quality of life. The quality of the experience at work is Quality of Work Life (QWL). Quality of life and Quality of Work Life affect and build on each other.

Certain factors like absenteeism are indications of poor QWL, while commitment to work is an index of good QWL.

Organisations have the responsibility to improve the QWL of their employees. Otherwise, the contributions of employees will be less than optimal. Psychological energy and therefore, physical and intellectual capacities, improve with QWL. Taking care of QWL directly impacts on organisational performance.

- ☐ Linking pins gather feedback from customers regarding product and service improvements
- ☐ Linking pins provide a connection between various teams in an organisation
- ☐ Linking pins provide a link between the organisation and the consumers
- ☐ All of the above
- ☐ Both a & c

 UnAttemptedCORRECT ANSWER:

Linking pins provide a connection between various teams in an organisation

Explanation:

In an office, there could be more than one team. It is difficult for too many people to work as a team.

One or two members from each of these teams can then form into a higher level team with the Head of the Office. The common members provide the link between the two levels of teams. They communicate to their teams the decisions, problems and concerns of the other teams, thus building better understanding. Such common members are called linking pins, as they link different levels of teams.

Through linking pins, the entire organisation can be connected. If the office is big, there will be teams within each department and the departmental heads will be the linking pins for the top team.

- Q 6. Which of the following is the purpose of delegation? 1. Avoidance 2. A tool to develop people 3. Abdication 4. Procrastination 5. A tool to help senior managers to improve their effectiveness
- ☐ Both 1 & 3
 - ☐ Both 2 & 3
 - ☐ Both 2 & 5
 - ☐ Both 4 & 5
 - ☐ Only 3

 UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Both 2 & 5

Explanation:

Delegation is the process by which a manager passes on to his sub-ordinate, the authority to make decisions and the responsibility to achieve certain results. Instruction to perform a certain task is not delegation.

Delegation is a tool to develop people. Studies show that when people are given authority to make decisions and responsibility to achieve results they are likely to show enthusiasm and commitment in their work. Delegation signifies that the person concerned is being given a responsibility, not normal for the role he is occupying. This has a message of confidence in his abilities. It also gives the sub-ordinate an opportunity to learn about jobs normally handled at a higher level and thus improves his experience. Also, delegation gives senior managers additional time to concentrate on jobs which require their attention.

Q 7. Choose the outcome of Hawthorne studies. 1. Fear is considered to be a strong motivator 2. A stronger need to 'belong' to the group suppresses the need for money 3. The only incentive that can motivate people is money

- ☐ Only 3
- ☐ Only 1
- ☐ Only 2
- ☐ Both 1 & 2
- ☐ Both 1 & 3

🚫 UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Only 2

Explanation:

The manager may offer extra bonus for better production but this may have little effect on the work. It is possible that the need for money is suppressed by a stronger need to "belong" to the group, to be met by doing only as much as everybody else does. This was what the Hawthorne studies showed.

Some may find that the amount of bonus offered is not commensurate with the extra effort required to earn it. Some may not try for it because they feel that the extra effort is beyond their capacity.

CORRECT ANSWER:Perception*Explanation:

Our perceptions, in a way, precondition our thoughts and views. If we know that a person is honest, then all data favouring that knowledge is accepted and remembered and data to the contrary, rejected and forgotten. On the contrary, if we know that the person is dishonest, the minutest event pointing to dishonesty, gets our attention to confirm the knowledge.

Our perceptions are often affected by the proximity of other information or data. This is the cause of the phenomenon known as optical illusions.

- ☐ have a structured format for reporting
- ☐ get employee feedback
- ☐ keep communication channels flowing
- ☐ frequently change the strategy
- ☐ maintain a high morale

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

frequently change the strategy

Explanation:

The incorrect option is: d. frequently change the strategy

Frequent strategy changes can create confusion and instability, which are counterproductive to continuity and sustainability in change management. The other options, such as maintaining open communication channels, having a structured reporting format, gathering employee feedback, and ensuring high morale, are essential practices for effective change management.

- ☐ Seniority based promotion is considered transparent
- ☐ Non-promotion usually conveys the message of the employee not being upto the mark
- ☐ Only a & b
- ☐ All of the above

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

All of the above

Explanation:

Promotion is the advancement of an employee to a higher post with more emoluments, prestige, higher status and greater responsibilities. Promotions are generally made on the basis of seniority or merit or a combination of both these criteria.

a) Promotion on the basis of seniority: Seniority may have a greater weightage at lower levels. Seniority has the advantages of objectivity, transparency, absence of scope for favouritism.

b) Promotion on the basis of merit: Merit will have a greater weightage at higher levels. Merit based promotion has the advantages of recognising and rewarding a meritorious worker and enthusing every aspirant to higher level of performance.

Q 14. _____denotes a management style wherein managers move around the operational areas and devote their time in listening to problems and ideas of the staff.

- ☐ M.B.W.A
- ☐ M.B.O
- ☐ Contact management
- ☐ Dynamic supervision
- ☐ M.O.P

❌ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

M.B.W.A

Explanation:

M.B.W.A (Manage by Walking Around) requires managers to move around the operational areas and be in touch with what is happening. This is very important in service industries more than in other industries, because the production takes place at the interactions and cannot be checked for quality, sitting elsewhere.

The company's philosophy and values have to be operational at the frontline where the customers interact with employees, who do not belong to the senior management. This will happen only when the values are internalised and the change has stabilised.

CORRECT ANSWER:

Departmentalisation

Explanation:

In a big organisation, several activities are to be undertaken to ensure that the overall objectives of the business are achieved. Many of these activities are similar and repetitive. For effectiveness of performance and control, it is necessary to group similar activities together. Such grouping of similar activities to facilitate administration results in the organisation structure.

Simulation: Simulation techniques attempt to create situations in the class room similar to real life work situations, so that the skills required in real life may be tried out, experimented with and perfected. A 100% replication may not be practicable but a reasonable approximation can be attempted.

Vestibule training methods are simulations of one kind. Aircraft pilots are trained in artificial chambers resembling the cockpit of an aircraft. Simulation provides experience and practice avoiding the costly injuries and damage due to errors in real life and real equipment. The learning comes from the feedback on what the trainee did during the simulation.

- ☐ Provisions as to how and when the workers can go on strike
- ☐ Options 'b' and 'c'
- ☐ All of the above

❌ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Options 'b' and 'c'

Explanation:

The Industrial Relations Act, 1945 lays down the legal framework under which workers are allowed to form unions which may negotiate with managements for matters concerning the workers.

It also provides for conciliation in the event of disputes arising because the management and the union fail to arrive at an agreement.

The law has elaborate provisions as to how and when the workers can go on strike or when and how the management can order a lock out. The purpose of the law is to ensure smooth functioning of industrial units and eliminate stoppage of the industrial unit.

- ☐ Ill-tempered persons are unlikely to be authentic
- ☐ An authentic person often seen as attempting to self-aggrandisement
- ☐ Only 'a' and 'b'
- ☐ All of above

 UnAttemptedCORRECT ANSWER:

Polite and sweet-sounding persons are not necessarily authentic

Explanation:

This characteristic refers to the genuineness or the bonafides in the behaviour of the members. When people are not seen as authentic, there is suspicion and lack of trust.

Ill-tempered persons can be authentic. Polite and sweet-sounding persons are not necessarily authentic.

If someone is not authentic, he may be trying to manipulate the situation to achieve what he wants, through false statements, misdirection and misinformation. Nobody likes to be manipulated. It conveys a message of disrespect. It is also an attempt at self-aggrandisement. Those who are manipulated may even turn hostile.

- ☐ Rewards give satisfaction
- ☐ Punishment is a part of the reward system
- ☐ All of the above
- ☐ Only 'a' and 'b'

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

All of the above

Explanation:

Theories on the motivations of people suggest that individuals act in order that they may get pleasure or satisfaction and avoid pain or dissatisfaction. Anything that gives satisfaction (pleasure) is a reward and anything that gives dissatisfaction (pain) is a punishment.

A reward system usually includes punishments to prevent undesirable behaviour.

- ☐ Mind can search for appropriate actions to overcome the difficult situations
- ☐ Crisis will be averted
- ☐ One can avoid crisis the next time around
- ☐ One can issue clear orders

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Mind can search for appropriate actions to overcome the difficult situations

Explanation:

Ability to maintain equanimity (emotional balance) in situations of crisis is needed so that the brain and mind can search for appropriate actions to overcome the difficult situations.

Lack of equanimity may lead to extremes of anger or depression or panic, none of which are helpful for clear thinking and exploration of available options. Clear thinking becomes a casualty even in cases of ecstatic elation.

Q 81. Identify from the following, the correct options with respect to job analysis.

- ☐ Job analysis help to identify the skills and qualification which is required for a job
- ☐ Job analysis help to identify and eliminate unimportant jobs
- ☐ Determinants arrived at after job analysis at different intervals of time will remain constant in a stable organisation
- ☐ Options 'a' and 'b'
- ☐ All of the above

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Options 'a' and 'b'

Explanation:

Job analysis is an important step in HR planning. It helps to identify the capabilities required to do the jobs in a role.

On the basis of job analysis, it is possible to:

- Distinguish between operational, supervisory and managerial jobs;
- Evaluate which jobs are more important than others, although no job will be unimportant. If any job is unimportant, it can and should be, eliminated.
- Make an hierarchy of jobs on the basis of difficulty in acquiring the knowledge and skills necessary to do the various jobs;
- Identify the jobs that are very crucial or critical for the operations

Q 82. Identify the leadership style which will be most effective in an emergency situation.

- ☐ 1.9 style
- ☐ 9.1 style
- ☐ 9.9 style
- ☐ Related style
- ☐ Integrated style

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

9.1 style

Explanation:

The 9.1 types have very high concern for task but very low concern for people. They are hard taskmasters, expect implicit obedience to instructions, show little concern for problems and feelings of people, and are interested in people only as instruments for production.

If the situation is one of emergency or crisis, like a building being on fire or a ship sinking, one person has to take charge and issue orders to everybody else. There is no time for discussion and asking for opinions and options.

In such emergency, someone has to take charge. Only 9.1 will be effective here.

Q 88. Identify the correct statement from the following with respect to leaders.

- ☐ Leaders have power
- ☐ Leaders without authority are ineffective
- ☐ All those having powers are leaders
- ☐ Options 'a' and 'b'
- ☐ All of the above

⊘ UnAttempted

CORRECT ANSWER:

Leaders have power

Explanation:

Leadership is the ability to influence other people. It is also defined as the process of influencing people.

Leaders have power. But all those having power are not leaders.

Authority includes the right to instruct subordinates. This does not necessarily help him exercise influence.

The ability to influence is defined as power. An effective leader has influence over his people. He therefore has power. A leader of a group, who is not able to influence the behaviour of his people, has no power, even though he may have authority.
